

UNIVERSITY OF NAIROBI

Applications are invited for the following position.

STUDY ADHERENCE TEAM LEAD, NDOVU STUDY, DEPARTMENT OF CLINICAL MEDICINE AND THERAPEUTICS – AD/7/37/25, 1 POST.

Job Purpose

The Study Adherence Team Lead will be responsible for coordination of teams offering Adherence Counselling for NDOVU study using Study Adherence Counselling Job Aids. This role is critical for ensuring all study participants receive adherence counselling in a standardized manner, as adherence is critical in supporting individuals living with HIV on dolutegravir-based antiretroviral therapy (ART) who are experiencing sustained viraemia. The lead adherence counselor will work closely with full-time study adherence staff and site clinic adherence staff to offer adherence counselling and document adherence counselling sessions to improve treatment adherence, address barriers to care, and ensure optimal health outcomes. S/He will also coordinate support services within each county liaising with county social support services and mental health services for referrals of participants requiring additional mental health support and social support.

Position Title: Study Adherence Team Lead

Location: NDOVU Study Sites

Reports to: Study Physician

Job Description

1. Provide training, supportive supervision and mentoring NDOVU study adherence staff and site staff involved in offering adherence counselling to NDOVU study participants
2. Hold debriefing for NDOVU study adherence staff and study site staff offering adherence counselling in the NDOVU study
3. Coordinate teams offering Adherence counselling in the different NDOVU sites in Kenya
4. Perform routine site visits and quality supervision visits to supervise and ensure adherence counselling is offered as per the study protocol.
5. Formulate and coordinate referral pathways for NDOVU participants requiring additional mental health support and social support within the established county systems.
6. Provide one-on-one psychotherapy counseling sessions for difficult and complex cases among study participants, focusing on treatment adherence and management of side effects e.g. patients with addiction, major depressive disorder and neurocognitive disorders.
7. Assess individual barriers to adherence and develop personalized strategies to overcome these challenges and educate participants about the importance of adherence to ART, potential side effects, and the implications of viral load results. The lead adherence can be called upon to fill in shortages when necessary.

8. Provide information on available support services, including mental health resources and community support groups.
9. Ensure adherence counsellors document participant interactions and progress in electronic case report forms (eCRFs) accurately, assess for completeness and offer additional training where this does not happen.
10. Participate in NDOVU study multidisciplinary team meetings to discuss complex cases where adherence of participants is not well established despite interventions made.
11. Collect qualitative data regarding participant experiences with treatment adherence and barriers faced.
12. Prepare reports on adherence trends, challenges encountered, and recommendations for improving participant support.
13. Any other duties assigned by supervisor
